

Conference Announcement

We are pleased to announce the European Operations Technical Conference (EOTC) 2010.

The conference will be held Monday, April 26 through Friday, April 30, 2010 in the IBM Lab in Boeblingen, Germany. Conference language will be English. This conference addresses the needs of System, Network and Automation Administrators. Sessions are presented by representatives from IBM software development teams and you, the product exploiters. Interaction and feedback is both expected and encouraged.

Topics cover a range of IBM system management products, mainly IBM Tivoli System Automation for z/OS and IBM Tivoli NetView for z/OS. Other topics might be GDPS, OMEGAMON XE Solutions, z/OS Automation Infrastructure, TWS and the IBM Tivoli Systems Management strategy. Additionally we plan to provide workshops that will be held in parallel to the main tent sessions.

The focus is on the mainframe environment but extends out into the enterprise, e.g. System Automation for Multiplatforms or System Automation Application Manager. Discussions can include product futures and requirements.

As last year we will again require all attendees to sign a non-disclosure agreement. This allows all speakers to talk freely about product futures and plans. Customer presentations are very welcome and appreciated as a contribution to the success of this conference. I'd like to encourage you to pass on any suggestions.

We expect a conference fee of about € 300 that will be charged to all attendees (except speakers). Travel, lodging and other expenses must be covered by the attendees (including speakers).

Registration is not yet opened but will come soon.
